Brown University Hires Diversified Project Management for Campus-Wide Projects

NEWTON, MA. (January 25, 2010) Diversified Project Management, Inc. (DPM), a Newton, MA-based Owner's Representative firm providing Programming, Pre-Construction, Project Management, Construction Administration, FF&E Coordination and Move-Planning Services, announced today that it has been hired by Brown University to provide move management services in conjunction with several upcoming projects. The Providence, Rhode Island-based University is planning a sequence of campus-wide renovations and relocations over the next 24 months to accommodate the growth of its renowned medical and science programs.

The work will affect 11 buildings on and off campus in both owned and leased space. In order to vacate a variety of buildings in preparation for renovation of the Metcalf Building housing the Mind Brain Behavior Institute, Brown is planning a series of relocations of the copy and graphics center, science, math & anthropology faculty, labs and research facilities. Following the completion of these renovations, additional relocations will occur to facilitate the occupancy of the newly renovated buildings. DPM has been engaged to manage planning for the relocations, assistance with the sourcing and procuring of new furniture, fixtures and equipment. In addition, DPM is coordinating some tenant improvement work associated with the various relocations.

Concurrently, Brown is also relocating its Investments and Education Alliance groups from the Warren Alpert building to accommodate the Medical Education program's renovations and planned occupation in July, 2011. Upon completion, The Medical Education program will be relocated permanently to the Warren Alpert Medical School. DPM is providing comprehensive relocation management services - FF&E specification, selection and installation coordination.

DPM has previously managed construction coordination and relocation projects at Brown as well as for a number of academic institutions throughout New England, including RISD, Bryant University, Harvard Business School, MIT, Yale and the University of Hartford.

About Brown University

Brown University, a member of the Ivy League, is renowned for the quality of its teaching, research, and student-centered curriculum. It was founded in 1764, making it the nation's seventh-oldest institution of higher education.

With 6,013 undergraduates, 1,832 graduate students, 416 medical students, and 686 full-time faculty, Brown provides both the close mentoring relationships characteristic of a liberal arts college and the intellectual excitement of a research-intensive university. The distinctive undergraduate curriculum asks students to be architects of their education, designing a unique course of study within the framework of concentration requirements.

The campus is composed of 238 buildings and sits on 143 acres in historic Providence, the capital of Rhode Island.
